

Libre Baskerville — Ambiguous Serif Test

The quick brown fox jumps over 1,234,567,890 lazy dogs.

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ

abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz

Lining figures: 0123456789

"When in doubt, use Caslon." William Caslon's types dominated English printing for a century, and Baskerville refined them. John Baskerville of Birmingham created his typeface in 1757, with high contrast between thick and thin strokes, generous proportions, and bracketed serifs. It was considered too refined for everyday reading at the time.

Bold: The quick brown fox jumps over 1,234,567,890 lazy dogs.